The journal, Railroad Heritage, provides a written record of historic and contemporary work in railroad photography and art. In 2006, It's Work, with memorable images from the "Representations of Railroad Work" exhibits, substituted for an issue. The Center has more remarkable issues of Railroad Heritage scheduled in 2007. No. 17 focuses on women in railroading, with Shirley Burman as guest editor. Burman has been working for 25 years to validate women's contributions to railroading. She has organized a traveling exhibition, lectured, and written articles to give recognition to women railroaders. Other publications, especially the catalog for the Ted Rose painting and photography exhibition, are on sale at www.railphoto-art.org/store/gifts.asp or by U.S. mail. The focus on visual representations sets the Center apart from most other historical and preservation organizations.
