Wallace W. Abbey: A Life in Railroad Photography
Kevin P. Keefe and Scott Lothes
Indiana University Press, 2018

From the late 1940s on, Wallace W. Abbey masterfully combined journalistic and artistic vision to transform everyday moments in transportation into magical photographs. Abbey, a photographer, journalist, historian, and railroad industry executive, helped people from many different backgrounds understand and appreciate what was often taken for granted: a world of locomotives, passenger trains, big-city terminals, small-town depots, and railroaders. During his lifetime he witnessed and photographed sweeping changes in the railroading industry from the steam era to the era of diesel locomotives and electronic communication. Wallace W. Abbey: A Life in Railroad Photography profiles the life and work of this legendary photographer and showcases the transformation of transportation and photography after World War II. Featuring more than 175 exquisite photographs in an oversized format, Wallace W. Abbey is an outstanding tribute to a gifted artist and the railroads he loved. The book will be for sale at Conversations for $50 and copies may be ordered on the Center’s website (www.railphoto-art.org/books) to be delivered after the conference. A traveling exhibit will debut on May 11, 2018 at the Grohmann Museum on the Milwaukee School of Engineering campus in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Beebe & Clegg: Their Enduring Photographic Legacy
John Gruber, John Ryan, and Mel Patrick
Center for Railroad Photography & Art, 2018

Beebe and Clegg: Their Enduring Photographic Legacy, a new book from the Center for Railroad Photography & Art, tells about how partners Lucius Beebe and Charles Clegg introduced railroad photography and the world of railroading to wide popular audiences. Beebe (1902-1966) initially championed the three-quarters or “wedge-of-pie” perspective in his photography. Clegg (1916-1979) introduced a more innovative outlook, boosting creativity for both of them. Their photographs shine in this new book, produced with the best of modern digitization, design, and printing techniques. Beebe and Clegg: Their Enduring Photographic Legacy includes 222 images from the California State Railroad Museum Library and Archives, all scanned from negatives and carefully cleaned and checked, revealing surprises. Many are previously unpublished. In addition to the CSRM collection, thirty-six images come from other sources. Over the course of eight chapters, the book traces Beebe and Clegg’s life and times together, their visual influences, short lines, narrow gauge lines, Nevada and the Virginia & Truckee, and their photography. Authors John Gruber and John Ryan, assisted by Mel Patrick, bring the best of their photographic work together in one book for the first time, using high quality duotone printing. The 224-page book goes on sale for $60 at Conversations. Copies may be ordered on the Center’s website and will be shipped immediately after the conference. A traveling exhibit is in the works.

John AUSTIN, Dawlish, England

Smoke, Steam & Light: A Journey Around the Railways of England, Wales & Scotland in Oil Paintings, Saturday, 10:45 A.M.

John Austin has been a professional artist for thirty years. He is the President and a Fellow of the Guild of Railway Artists. He has won the ‘GRA Picture of the Year Award’ twenty-four times in the past twenty-five years. He currently lives by the coast in the South West of England.

Robin COOMBES, Birmingham, England

A Different View, Saturday, 2:00 P.M.

Robin has a lifelong passion for steam railways and is perhaps best known for his innovative photography for which he has won several awards and been widely published. Robin is currently a Ph.D. research student in Governance of Heritage Railways at the University of Birmingham, Centre for Railway Research and Education. He is also a Director of Vintage Trains CBS, which aims to become the first new public British Main Line Railway Company in one hundred years to run express steam trains.

McNair EVANS, San Francisco, California

In Search of Great Men: Portraits with 21st Century American Rail Passengers, Saturday, 9:30 A.M.

Evans explores themes of shared experiences and identity by photographing the American cultural landscape. Since 2012, McNair has taken Amtrak trips to meet and photograph passengers. He elicits first person, passenger-written journals, often about connection and change. In Search of Great Men explores a search for hope that so defines national identity. In 2016 the John Simon Guggenheim Foundation named McNair a Photography Fellow, supporting this continued investigation of contemporary America’s culture through its passenger rail system.

Alan FURLER, Cape May, New Jersey

Donald W. Furler’s Photography: Quiet Monsters Coming to Life, Sunday, 9:00 A.M.

Furler grew up in Glen Rock, New Jersey. He spent much of his youth trackside with his father from near the end of the regular steam era and continuing with many later special steam excursions. He developed his own love of trains, especially steam. Furler’s career in biomedical engineering focused on medical device R&D. He retired in 2011 as a vice president with a GE Medical business. In recent years he has focused on preserving his father’s photographic collection, which was donated to the Center in 2017.

Robert GOULD, Chattanooga, Tennessee

Getting It Right: The Railroad Art of Illustrator John Fleming Gould, Sunday, 10:15 A.M.

Gould, son of artist John E. Gould, is a retired high school and college math instructor. Along with his 33-year career in education, he continues to be active in the promotion of his father’s art work. In growing up in the art business, Robert and his brothers were models for their father’s work and saw how the finished art work was developed. Robert and his wife, Loretta, reside in Chattanooga, Tennessee. He is an active volunteer in the American Red Cross and serves on the Board of the Eastern Tennessee American Red Cross.

Victor HAND, Bar Harbor, Maine

Donald W. Furler’s Photography: Quiet Monsters Coming to Life, Sunday, 9:00 A.M.

Hand was born in New York City in 1942 and spent most of his career as a consultant in the transportation industry. He worked on such railroad watersheds as the dismantling of the Milwaukee Road and both the creation and the breakup of Conrail. A globe-trotting railroad photographer, he has been widely published in Trains and other magazines, and his books include The Love of Trains (1974) and Steam Odyssey (2013).
George HIOTIS, Clark, New Jersey

Towers — The Last Outposts, Saturday, 11:30 A.M.

Hiotis is a professional photographer who saw the beginning of his career by borrowing the family camera to take pictures of trains. He made his very first picture at the Jersey Central station in nearby Westfield in the mid-1950s, and his interest advanced beyond the hobby stage in the early 1970s. He has nurtured a great passion for railroads, in both their mechanical and human aspects, most often aiming for an unusual representation. He has won two grand prizes and one second prize in the Trains magazine photo contests.

Kevin P. KEEFE, Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Wallace W. Abbey: A Life in Railroad Photography, Saturday, 4:00 P.M.

Keefe was born in Chicago in 1951 and graduated from Michigan State University’s School of Journalism in 1973. He was a key figure in the effort to restore Pere Marquette steam locomotive no. 1225 and recently authored a book about the locomotive. He worked for daily newspapers in Michigan and Wisconsin, and as an associate editor and editor-in-chief of Trains. He became associate publisher in 2000, and, from 2005 to retirement in March of 2017, was vice-president-editorial and publisher of Kalmbach Publishing Co.

Matthew KIERSTEAD, Marlborough, New York

Getting It Right: The Railroad Art of Illustrator John Fleming Gould, Sunday, 10:15 A.M.

Kierstead hails from southern New England where he grew up with changing railroading under Penn Central and Conrail. He earned an M.A. in Public History from West Virginia University where he was exposed to coal mines and steel mills and spent a summer documenting the East Broad Top Railroad for the Historic American Engineering Record. Matt worked in historical preservation and cultural resource management for more than twenty years before moving to the Hudson River valley in 2011 where he started Milestone Heritage Consulting.

David LESTER, Atlanta, Georgia

Docent Panel, moderator, Sunday, 11:30 A.M.

Lester is a transportation writer, historian, and photographer, who lives in Atlanta, Georgia. He is a Correspondent for Trains magazine, writes for the Railway & Locomotive Historical Society’s Railroad History, and serves on the editorial advisory board of the journal. He also writes for Railroad Heritage, the Center’s quarterly journal. In addition, David contributed eighteen entries to the Encyclopedia of North American Railroads, published by Indiana University Press. He is a member of the Lexington Group in Transportation History.

ScottLOTHESS, Madison, Wisconsin

Wallace W. Abbey: A Life in Railroad Photography, Saturday, 4:00 P.M.

Lothes has been the Center’s full-time executive director since 2011 and in 2013 he succeeded John Gruber as president and editor of the Center’s journal Railroad Heritage. Fascinated with railroads since birth, he turned a hobby into a rewarding and innovative career. To date more than 500 of his photographs have appeared in print, along with more than fifty bylined articles in magazines including Trains, Classic Trains, Railfan & Railroad, and Railroads Illustrated, as well as two front-page travel stories in Portland, Oregon’s Oregonian.

William Benning STEWART, Greenwood, Indiana

Paralleling Paths: Railroading and Commercial Photography Mature Together in the Industrial Age, Saturday, 3:15 P.M.

Stewart is a semi-retired corporate communications manager, for many years an executive speechwriter for the Chrysler Corporation in Detroit. Grandson of a New York Central official, son of an educator father and newspaperwoman mother, he soon blended writing and photography with his boundless study of railroading. Over the past four decades his articles on railroad history have appeared in Trains, Classic Trains and other publications.

James G. WRINN, Waukesha, Wisconsin

Placeholders for Old Memories: The Railroad Photography of William G. Gordon, Saturday, 8:45 A.M.

Wrinn has been editor of Trains since October 27, 2004. He worked at newspapers in Durham, Gastonia, and Fayetteville before joining The Charlotte Observer in 1986. He has worked as editor and writer for more than six publications, as well as authored several books. Jim is a lifelong steam fan, and he is a qualified locomotive engineer at the North Carolina Transportation Museum in Spencer.
About the Print Program

Begun in 2009, the Center’s print program offers opportunities to collect important railroad photographs at affordable prices, while providing financial support for the Center’s ongoing programs. As with other art-based nonprofits that sell prints from well-known photographers, the Center prices its photographs well below the gallery rates of San Francisco, New York, and Chicago. The selection and prices give incentives to collectors to purchase artwork they like while helping an organization they believe in.

To put the Center’s offer in context, consider that fine-art photography prints from major artists now range from $2,000 to $3,000 (Richard Steinheimer prints, for example), $3,000 to $7,500 (David Plowden), and up to half-a-million dollars for artists such as Andreas Gursky. Photographs by Mel Patrick, Howard Pincus, Wayne Depperman, John Gruber, and Richard Steinheimer (again) that appeared in the Starlight on the Rails show at the Robert Mann Gallery in 2000 brought $750 to $1,500 each. Plowden prints once sold for $125; the asking price today regularly exceeds $3,000.

Collecting photography is fun and rewarding. Foremost, it brings aesthetic pleasure; secondarily, it can prove a better investment than many stocks. You can see the prints themselves on display at this year’s conference, and they will be available until the editions sell out. We will continue to unveil new selections in the same price range each year, featuring them also on the website. If you have suggestions for future participating photographers, please let us know.

Additional Prints Available

In addition to the two images from this year’s print program, you may peruse and purchase past works from previous years.

Print Raffles

As in recent years at the conference, two photographers have donated prints that the Center has framed and matted that you can win in raffle drawings.

Renowned photographer David Plowden has donated a photograph for the raffle. His archival pigment print shows the Erie Lackawanna’s westbound Phoebe Snow passenger train making a stop in Scranton, Pennsylvania, in 1964, just two years before the railroad discontinued the train. The image was included in Plowden’s book Requiem for Steam (W. W. Norton & Company, 2010). The 12x11 archival print is matted and framed in black metal.

Mel Patrick’s photograph features the Broadway Limited, Pennsylvania Railroad’s train no. 26, awaiting departure from Chicago Union Station in 1966. The image was included in the book Starlight on the Rails, edited by Jeff Brouws and Ed Delvers. The 16x20 archival pigment print is matted and framed in black metal.

The drawing for Patrick’s will be drawn on Friday; Plowden’s print will be held at dinner on Saturday.

Raffle Tickets
Ticket prices for each raffle are $10 each, $25 for three, or $40 for five. You may purchase tickets on Friday evening for both raffles, and on Saturday morning for the Plowden raffle.

For the past several years, the Center for Railroad Photography & Art has been offering scholarships for emerging photographers and visual artists to attend our Conversations conference at Lake Forest College in Lake Forest, Illinois. Scholarship recipients serve as docents during the conference and, new in 2018, will take part in a panel discussion on its final day. We’re pleased to present this year’s recipients: Ryan Gaynor, Will Jordan, Samuel Phillips, and Johnathan Riley. In addition, we’re also happy to introduce Alex Silka, who will join the recipients for the panel discussion, which will be moderated by David Lester. Conversations 2018 attendees will have the opportunity to meet these talented young photographers in person, see examples of their work, and hear their perspectives on 21st century railroading.

Alex Silka is a twenty-two-year-old photographer and railroader from Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Since graduating from Lincoln High School in Wisconsin Rapids in 2013, Silka has served as both a conductor and engineer for the Union Pacific Railroad, mainly working on the former Chicago & North Western routes out of Eau Claire. Silka’s photography features shortline and mainline railroads traversing stark landscapes in Wisconsin and Minnesota. He produces many of his photographs as high contrast black-and-white images, heightening the natural drama of rail transportation. This will be Silka’s first time attending Conversations.

Ryan Gaynor, a fourth-year student at Ryerson University’s School of Media, joins us from Toronto for his second time at Conversations. Gaynor counts his first trip to the conference as a benchmark in his young photographic career; attending enabled him to experience new approaches to photography as well as pursue professional opportunities. His first published photograph appeared in Trains only a few months later. Since that time, Gaynor’s photographs and videos have been featured in a variety of magazines, newspapers, and web publications including the NBC Nightly News and the Marilyn Denis Show. When he’s not at school or photographing trains, Gaynor is a videographer for Habitat for Humanity and a content partner for YouTube.

Second-time attendee Will Jordan is a sixteen-year-old high school sophomore who lives in upstate South Carolina. His interest in trains has been existent for as long as he can remember. After getting his hands on a point-and-shoot digital camera at age eight, he has loved photographing railroads ever since. Fascinated by the historic aspects of railroading, Jordan favors old equipment, historical structures, and dramatic scenery in his photography. His current focus is on documenting and preserving iconic and rapidly disappearing railroad signals. Jordan has had work published in Trains magazine, Greenville & Western Railway calendars, and various travel booklets.

Samuel Phillips is a twenty-one-year-old photographer who resides in Radford, Virginia. Growing up in the Appalachian region of the state, Phillips’s earliest railfan memories are of seeing coal trains rolling over former Norfolk & Western and Virginian trackage. To this day, he counts the Clinchfield and Virginian Railways among his favorite railroad subjects. Over the past few years, Phillips has written several feature articles about railroading, and his photographic work has appeared in various publications including Trains, Railfan & Railroad, Railpace, Railroad Explorer, and Railroads Illustrated. This will be Phillips’s second time attending Conversations.

Hailing from Baltimore, Maryland, seventeen-year-old Johnathan Riley has been photographing for the last three years. Two-and-a-half years ago, Riley began to shoot Smoke in the Sky, a photographic series that depicts the last American steam engines. Riley followed up this project with Rough around the Edges, a series focused on documenting railroad workers. Riley is a volunteer at the Wilmington and Western Railroad and the Jarrettsville Volunteer Fire Department in Maryland.

Gifts from the conference’s many patrons provide the funds that make these scholarships possible. Sign up now at: www.railphoto-art.org/conferences

In Memoriam: William G. Gordon

William G. Gordon passed away on March 16, 2018, after a brief but difficult battle with cancer. He was to be a presenter at this year’s Conversations conference. Jim Wrinn, editor of Trains magazine, will present Gordon’s exceptional photography. His daughters Leslie Gordon and Michelle Lenox will attend the conference as honored guests.

Gordon worked as a steam power mechanical engineer after graduating from the University of Virginia with a degree in mechanical engineering. He loved railroading since watching the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio pass by his dad’s business in Wilmington, Delaware, as a kid. A subscription to Trains magazine and scores of weekend trips across the backcountry of Virginia cemented a lifelong love for the hobby. Between the years 1957 and 1962, Gordon made dozens of trips across the Appalachian landscape capturing the honest character of the region. Gordon shared his passion for railroading with his children throughout their lives. In preparing for his presentation at this year’s conference, Gordon and his children found the opportunity to look back on his photographs as “placeholders for old memories” and, in the process, they created new ones together. Gordon will be deeply missed at this year’s Conversations, and we carry his memory with us.

Center for Railroad Photography & Art

The Center for Railroad Photography & Art is a national nonprofit arts and education organization founded in 1997 and based in Madison, Wisconsin. As its mission the Center preserves and presents significant images of railroading, interpreting them in publications, exhibitions, and on the Internet.

Efforts to preserve railroad artwork and photographs have led to the Center’s amassing an archive of more than 200,000 images, including the complete works of several well-known photographers. Full processing of these collections includes housing them in archival-safe storage materials and digitizing the images as well as their captions, or metadata. The Center is actively adding to its archive and conducts these preservation activities both in house and in concert with the Archives & Special Collections of the Donnelley & Lee Library at Lake Forest College.

The Center also collaborates with partners across the country on its presentation work. Foremost is After Promontory, an exhibition developed in anticipation of the impending sesquicentennial of the first transcontinental railroad completed in 1869. A photography exhibition featuring images from the 1860s to the present, the show examines the significance and lasting impact of the transcontinental railroads on the American West. The exhibition will debut in conjunction with the release of After Promontory: One Hundred and Fifty Years of Transcontinental Railroading, a book of essays and photographs that tells the same narrative of the altering American landscape amidst 150 years of railroads.

The Center prepares other traveling exhibitions about railroad workers and individual photographers such as David Plowden and O. Winston Link. Venues have included Grand Central Terminal, the California State Railroad Museum, and Milwaukee’s Grohmann Museum. Support from the North American Railway Foundation (NARF) led to the long-running Representations of Railroad Work program. All told, the Center has brought some twenty unique exhibitions of significant railroad photography and art to more than eighty venues throughout the country.

Publication of Railroad Heritage, the Center’s journal, occurs quarterly. Each issue features work by historic and contemporary photographers and artists plus news of the field. Special issues have honored workers, women in railroading, and individual photographers, and have concisely explained railroad history and preservation.

Each spring going back to 2003, the Center hosts this conference, and all but one have been held on the campus of Lake Forest College. The conference provides a forum for veteran and young photographers alike—as well as artists, historians, editors, and railroaders—to mingle both socially and formally, present and discuss their work, and address photographic and artistic issues. Thanks to the generosity of several conference patrons, the Center recently began offering scholarships to enable young or developing photographers and artists to attend the conference. A regionally-themed northeastern conference was held at the University of Connecticut on October 29, 2016, and its success points the way towards more regional conferences. September 2018 will mark the Center’s second regional conference to be hosted at the California State Railroad Museum in Sacramento, California.

The annual John E. Gruber Creative Photography Awards Program recognizes recent work by railroad photographers in the United States and abroad. Named for the Center’s principal founder, the awards program includes an exhibition at the California State Railroad Museum and publication in Railfan & Railroad magazine.

Learn more about the Center’s work at www.railphoto-art.org, which features images from the archives and includes links to other online platforms at Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Flickr, and Instagram. Follow them to stay abreast of current events and trends in railroad photography and art as well as the Center’s research and acquisitions.
Support the Center’s Endowment Fund
by making a gift through your estate

To help secure a bright future, and to ensure long-term care for our growing collections and exhibitions, the Center has created an endowment fund. A gift to the fund, established through your estate, can make a lasting impact on the work of the Center for Railroad Photography & Art while costing you nothing during your lifetime. Leaving a legacy in our railroad heritage community is easy. Just ask your attorney or financial advisor to include the boxed language in your will, trust, insurance policy, or other beneficiary designation forms.

Your legacy gift can be directed to support any of our specific programs where you have a particular interest or to provide general support for all of the activities of the Center. In your estate plan, it is important to use the endowment’s full and exact name: “Center for Railroad Photography & Art Endowment” (EIN 47-7373395). As a 509(a)(3) nonprofit organization, gifts are tax exempt to the fullest extent permissible by law.

To ensure that your legacy will be established according to your wishes, please get in touch with Scott Lothes, president and executive director, at 608-251-5785 or scott@railphoto-art.org. Your commitment will remain fully confidential.

In addition to estate gifts, we welcome current gifts of cash or securities to the endowment, which will be fully matched by Bon French’s challenge.

I give _____% and/or $______ of my estate to the Center for Railroad Photography & Art Endowment (EIN 47-7373395), 313 Price Place, Suite 13, Madison, Wisconsin, 53705-3262, to provide funding for __________________ at the Center or the program(s) most in need as determined by the administration of the Center and its board of directors, and by the trustees of the Center’s endowment fund.
